

Using technology to drive efficiency & accountability

How are we using technology to advance best practices and governance?

Blended learning (classrooms with projectors)

Gamification of modules

Quiklrn – a school management app that promotes better learning

We use the COLA software – stores longitudinal data on students and families enabling:

Tracking of individual child performance

Tracking impact of Parikrma's model on family welfare

Informed decisions about teaching methods and tools

We use Salesforce to:

Boost operational efficiency

Better donor management – timely automated generation of receipts etc.

Accurate reporting

The success of our NIOS program

“We had launched the NIOS program a couple of years ago for some of our students who have challenges in following the regular curriculum but have extraordinary talent in art, music and a few different subjects. We believe that all children have their unique talent and should not be straightjacketed to follow a pattern that discourages them and affects their self-esteem. It was a challenge to convince our parents, teachers and even students the benefit of the NIOS program but a few of us just didn't give up. We recently distributed certificates to our students who did amazingly well in the Board exams with 100% pass. We are sure that they would have dropped out years ago if we hadn't held on to them somehow. We were happy to have Mr Satish of NIOS inaugurate our newly furnished NIOS classrooms. A big shout out to our NIOS teachers.” - Shukla Bose

Winners!

At the recently held cultural event, Invision organised by the Inventure Academy, Parikrma children won the first place in the dance competition.

Straight from the experts

A whole series of sessions were held for students of grade 10 participating in the biology workshop “Life under a microscope” conducted by the scientists at JNCASR.

Work with us!

A visual storyteller? Want to share a bunch of transformation stories with the world?

Write to us at:

ganak@parikrmafoundation.org

You can support our work:
Donate!

